Foster Garvey Newsroom

Foster Garvey announces today a change in the leadership of its acclaimed Municipal, Health & Housing practice. After three years of devoted service as Chair, Lee R. Marchisio will be stepping down, passing the torch to the highly experienced Allison C. Schwartzman, both of whom are Principals based in the firm's Seattle office. The transition in leadership was effective February 1, 2024.

Lee, during his tenure as Chair, worked to further the growth and success of the practice while the team continued to navigate complex municipal finance transactions. The group earned several accolades for its industry-leading work and client-centric approach, including receiving national first-place honors as Top Bond Counsel (Competitive) in The Bond Buyer's Third Quarter 2023 rankings and garnering praise for Public Finance in the 2024 edition of Best Law Firms®.

Foster Garvey Co-Chair Diana Shukis expressed her gratitude, stating, "Lee's leadership has been instrumental in our ability to adeptly serve our firm's broad-based municipal government clients, while upholding the practice's longstanding reputation as a powerhouse in the Pacific Northwest. We extend our heartfelt thanks to Lee for his outstanding contributions and wish him continued success."

Stepping into the role as Chair is Allison Schwartzman, a well-respected public finance attorney with nearly two decades of experience. Her practice centers around representing clients as bond counsel, underwriter's counsel and borrower's counsel in tax-advantaged financings, with a focus on the multifamily and senior housing, health care, transportation, higher education and nonprofit arenas.
