Foster Garvey Newsroom

Foster Garvey is pleased to announce the addition of Aaron Frishman as Of Counsel in the firm's Portland office.

With more than 15 years of helping clients in estate and tax planning, elder law, trust and estate administration, and litigation, Aaron joins Foster Garvey's highly touted Trusts, Estates & Charitable Organizations practice. He brings extensive experience advising clients in comprehensive estate and tax planning, drafting wills, trusts and advanced directives. Aaron provides representation in estate and trust administration matters, probate, and also litigates in this area. In addition, he advises and advocates for aging clients and those with disabilities. He also works closely with families with loved ones who either have disabilities or suffer from diminished capacity, requiring guardianships and conservatorships.

"We are excited to welcome Aaron and add his many years of in-depth experience to our growing team," said Christine Brown, Principal and leader of the firm's Trusts, Estates & Charitable Organizations practice. "Aaron is known for providing excellent counsel to his clients while treating them with dignity and respect. We look forward to having him on the team to serve Foster Garvey clients."

Aaron was previously a partner at Bousquet Holstein PLLC in Syracuse, New York, where he focused on comprehensive estate and tax planning, succession planning for high-net-worth individuals, trust and estate litigation, and elder law matters. Drawing from experience in corporate and not-for-profit matters, he recognized an unmet need for businesses in the emerging commercial small Unmanned Aircraft System (i.e., drone) industry. In response, he helped establish a new legal practice
