

Modern Slavery In Our Lives

Bethany Hall @ Seton Hall University, South Orange
September 20, 2018

Event Sponsor: New Jersey Coalition Against Human Trafficking, International Justice Project, Slave-Free Community Project

Raymond M. Brown will lecture at the presentation “Modern Slavery In Our Lives,” to be presented by the New Jersey Coalition Against Human Trafficking, the International Justice Project, and the Slave-Free Community Project on Thursday, September 20, 2018 from 2:00pm – 4:30pm at Bethany Hall, Seton Hall University.

There are 25,000,000 human beings in forced labor across the globe. Slave-made products such as cars, cell phones, and chocolate are in our stores, are bought by our schools, our governments, ourselves. This program will be a discussion of how slave-made products are in our everyday lives, with a focus on facts and solutions from a panel of experts. The event is free and open to the public (registration is required).

Mr. Brown is a leading figure in the developing area of law related to the regulation and enforcement of business requirements for human rights compliance. He is the co-founder of the International Justice Project and a devoted advocate for human rights. He concentrates his legal practice in white collar criminal defense, international human rights issues, internal investigations and complex commercial litigation.

Registration details at: <https://bit.ly/2Mfa2Jz>