

2015 Edition of “New Jersey Business Litigation” Published by New Jersey Law Journal Books: Paul A. Rowe and Andrea J. Sullivan Are Co-Authors

November 25, 2014

Paul A. Rowe and Andrea J. Sullivan are co-authors of the 2015 edition of “New Jersey Business Litigation” (New Jersey Law Journal Books).

The publication, which covers a broad range of subjects about which businesses litigate and is written from the perspective of how New Jersey courts will view the case, has become the standard for commercial litigators, in-house counsel, general practitioners and transactional attorneys representing business clients in New Jersey.

Mr. Rowe is Chairman of the Firm and Chair of its Litigation Department. His practice focuses on the representation of a broad range of individual and institutional clients in state and federal courts in New Jersey and other states throughout the country. Mr. Rowe has served as lead counsel in a myriad of diverse and prominent business litigations. He has tried to conclusion numerous cases involving trade secrets, antitrust, stock fraud, real estate brokerage, corporate and partnership disputes, as well as high profile matrimonial matters and chancery cases of all types. He is the original author of “New Jersey Business Litigation.”

Ms. Sullivan is a partner in the firm’s Litigation Department. Her practice includes commercial litigation, estate litigation, matrimonial litigation, chancery litigation, and alternative dispute resolution, with a particular focuses on the representation of high net-worth individuals and the resolution of matters requiring sophisticated business valuations. She has handled cases involving many types of business conflicts, including contract disputes, oppressed minority shareholder litigation, hiring and termination of senior employees, non-compete issues, and other “business divorce” matters.