

Greenbaum, Rowe, Smith & Davis Website Wins Two Industry Awards

April 14, 2015

Greenbaum, Rowe, Smith & Davis is proud to announce that our new website has received Best in Class recognition in two categories - Legal and Professional Services – in the 2014 Interactive Media Awards competition. The Best in Class award is the highest honor bestowed by the Interactive Media Council. It is awarded for the development of websites that excel in all areas of the IMC’s judging criteria, earning a perfect, or near perfect, overall score in areas of design, content, feature functionality, usability, and standards compliance.

The firm also announces with pride that our website is the recipient of a 2015 Gold AVA Digital Award in the Website/Professional Services category. The AVA Digital Awards are administered and judged by the Association of Marketing and Communication Professionals (AMCP). This is an international competition that recognizes excellence in the planning, concept, direction, design and production of digital communications, including website development.
