We are living in extraordinary times, as proven by New Jersey Governor Phil Murphy's Executive Order 107, which went into effect on Saturday, March 21, 2020, at 9:00 pm.

In a nutshell, the Order directs that New Jersey residents must "stay at home" with limited exceptions, to combat the spread of the COVID-19 virus in the state.

Under New Jersey law, Executive Order 107 makes it a disorderly persons offense, subject to up to a $1,000 fine or six months in jail, if any New Jersey resident fails to remain in their residence unless they are:

- obtaining goods or services from essential retail businesses;
- obtaining takeout food or beverages from restaurants and other food establishments;
- seeking medical attention, essential social services, or assistance from law enforcement or emergency services;
- visiting family or individuals with whom they have a close personal relationship;
- reporting to, or performing, their job;
- engaging in outdoor activities with household members while also following best social distancing practices (i.e., staying six feet apart);
- leaving the home for educational, religious, or political reasons;
- leaving because of a reasonable fear for his or her health or safety; or
- leaving at the direction of law enforcement or other government agency.

Executive Order 107 also cancels gatherings of individuals, such as parties, celebrations, or other social events, and closes to the public the brick-and-mortar premises of all non-essential retail businesses. The following "essential retail businesses" may remain open during their normal business hours:

- Grocery stores, farmer's markets and farms that sell directly to customers, and other food stores, including retailers that offer a varied assortment of foods comparable to what exists at a grocery store;
- Pharmacies and alternative treatment centers that dispense medicinal marijuana;
- Medical supply stores;
- Retail functions of gas stations;
- Convenience stores;
- Ancillary stores within healthcare facilities;
- Hardware and home improvement stores;
- Retail functions of banks and other financial institutions;
- Retail functions of laundromats and dry-cleaning services;
- Stores that principally sell supplies for children under five years old;
- Pet stores;
- Liquor stores;
- Car dealerships, but only to provide auto maintenance and repair services, and auto mechanics;
- Retail functions of printing and office supply shops; and
- Retail functions of mail and delivery stores.

Restaurants, cafeterias, dining establishments, food courts, bars, and all other holders of a liquor license with retail consumption privileges are permitted to operate during their normal business hours, but are limited to offering only food delivery and/or take-out services in accordance with their existing liquor licenses. If alcoholic beverages are to be sold from a restaurant, dining establishment or bar with a liquor license, such sales are limited to original containers sold from the principal public barroom. The on-premises consumption of alcohol is prohibited.

The following recreational and entertainment businesses have also been ordered to close to the public:

- Casino gaming floors, retail sports wagering lounges, and casino concert and entertainment venues. Online and mobile sports and casino gaming services may continue to be offered.
- Racetracks, including stabling facilities and retail sports wagering lounges. Mobile sports wagering services may continue to be offered.
- Gyms and fitness centers and classes.

As a general matter, all businesses and non-profits must accommodate their workforce, wherever practicable, for telework or work-from-home arrangements through the use of technology that equips the individual to access necessary materials.

All public, private, and parochial schools must remain closed and institutions of higher education may not have in-person instruction. Some schools may be permitted by the Department of Education to remain open on a limited basis for the provision of food or other essential, non-educational services, or for educational or child-care services if needed in emergency situations.

Nothing contained in Executive Order 107 limits, prohibits, or restricts the following:
