Education Law Practice Group

Hodgson Russ represents school districts throughout New York State and has done so for decades. To help our school district clients meet their legal challenges, we have assembled a team of experienced attorneys who focus on education law and public sector employment law. The attorneys in our Education Law Practice Group counsel boards of education, school superintendents, and school administrators on issues of policy and implementation. For almost 25 years, our annual school client conference and special ed updates have allowed us to update our clients on important matters affecting their districts.

Speakers

Ryan L. Everhart concentrates his practice in the area of education and labor law, with a particular focus on special education law. He has successfully represented public school districts in numerous administrative and court proceedings under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act and Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act. Mr. Everhart has also represented schools in investigations by the New York State Education Department and in legal proceedings before the Commissioner of Education. He regularly consults with school districts in matters concerning employee discipline/termination, student residency, and school record confidentiality, among other issues.

Dylan A. Pauly is an attorney in Hodgson Russ's Education Law and Labor & Employment Practice Groups. She focuses her practice in the areas of special education law, general education matters, and labor and employment matters. Ms. Pauly has worked as both an assistant district attorney and an assistant public defender, handling felony- and misdemeanor-level offenses. Prior to becoming an attorney, Ms. Pauly worked as a special education teacher.

Jeffrey J. Weiss is the administrator of the firm's Special Education Practice Group. With extensive litigation and trial experience, he frequently represents school districts in special education proceedings before impartial hearing officers and the New York State review officer. He also counsels school districts on their duties and responsibilities under the Individuals with Disabilities in Education Act and Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act. Mr. Weiss frequently lectures to school district personnel and board of education members on topics in special education law.
