Alexandria is a member of the firm's Business Litigation practice who has represented clients in complex, high-stakes cases in federal and state courts. Her areas of focus include business disputes and resulting litigation, school district litigation, products liability and complex tort, intellectual property and cybersecurity. While Alexandria's practice covers many areas, she focuses principally on intellectual property and cybersecurity cases and is a member of the firm's Security Committee. Alexandria also has substantial experience defending clients in Child Victims Act lawsuits.

Alexandria served as a publications editor on the University at Buffalo Law Review and received several awards for academic achievement while in law school. Prior to joining Hodgson Russ, Alexandria held a semester clerkship position with the Hon. Lawrence J. Vilardo at the U.S. District Court for the Western District of New York.
