Efforts to control the spread of the coronavirus around the world have created significant uncertainty for businesses of all sizes and across industries. While the ultimate impact of these efforts is not yet clear, many companies need to make workforce decisions to stay responsive to customers, conserve spending, and remain compliant with a cascade of new laws and orders. This webinar will discuss emerging legal issues, sick leave policies, and furlough and termination options under current US restrictions and economic realities. We also will discuss best practices for asking your US employees to work from home.
