As companies start to look at the new realities of returning to the office vs working from home, many companies are introducing remote/hybrid worker policies to enable employees more flexibility in where they work. This “new normal” creates a major tax savings opportunity for companies subject to NYC’s Unincorporated Business Tax (UBT).

Join Elizabeth Pascal, Partner at Hodgson Russ LLP and Nishant Mittal, SVP, Topia Compass, in an interactive discussion that covers the legal and practical ways of how to minimize UBT while staying prepared for a potential audit.

This 60-minute webinar will cover:

- Impacts of telecommuting from outside NYC on NYC UBT
- Calculating the receipts factor based on where services are performed
- Whose services matter?
- Documenting where services are performed
