

CLOUD-COMPUTING SALES TAX LITIGATION ON BEHALF INFORMATION SERVICES PROVIDER

Hodgson Russ served as tax counsel in a New York litigation involving a software and information services provider. The scope of litigation included questions about New York's ability to tax cloud-computing transactions as well as bundling of taxable and non-taxable information services. We reached a settlement for cents on the dollar shortly before the scheduled administrative law judge hearing.

Attorneys

Timothy Noonan

Joseph Endres

Practices & Industries

State & Local Tax

Technology