

HODGSON RUSS CLIENT CLEANEDISON INTERVIEWED ABOUT GREEN BUILDING INDUSTRY

August 7, 2009

Executives from CleanEdisonsm were guests on Good Morning America, July 28. They were invited to discuss their revolutionary approach to promoting sustainability and green-building practices, including by offering both education and actual energy consulting services like LEED (Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design) certification and test preparation to professionals in the green-building industry.

CleanEdisonsm serves federal, state, and local governments; building design and construction firms; owners; operators; and real estate investors. They have educated hundreds of companies and tens of thousands of individuals in green-building practices, both through customized training and the largest open enrollment green-training program in the nation.

Hodgson Russ attorneys, including Ronniel S. Levy, a partner in the Corporate & Securities Practice Group in Hodgson Russ's New York office, have been pleased to assist CleanEdisonsm with a range of their legal needs.

Click here to learn more about CleanEdison\(sm\).

Practices & Industries

Green Building

