

THE DAYS OF TAX-FREE DIGITAL CONTENT ARE NUMBERED

MarketWatch, Wall Street Journal
March 12, 2014

Hodgson Russ tax attorney Debra S. Herman is quoted in the MarketWatch article “The Days of Tax-Free Digital Content are Numbered,” published March 12, 2014. The article discusses the federal Marketplace Fairness Act, which would require large online vendors to collect sales tax on items like clothes and electronics, and states’ efforts to pass legislation extending sales tax to digital content. Debra told MarketWatch that “New York’s Department of Taxation and Finance has been ‘aggressively asserting’ that purchases of electronic services (such as apps) are taxable licenses to use pre-written software.”

MarketWatch is part of The Wall Street Digital Network.

Click here to read “The Days of Tax-Free Digital Content are Numbered.”

Attorneys

Debra Herman

Practices & Industries

State & Local Tax

