

AROUND NYC'S INCOME TAX IN 183 DAYS

Wall Street Journal
April 10, 2015

Hodgson Russ tax attorney and New York State Residency Practice leader Timothy Noonan is quoted in the Wall Street Journal article "Around NYC's Income Tax in 183 Days," published April 10, 2015. The article's author discusses the New York City income tax, and interviews Tim as an experienced practitioner of New York residency law--what the author calls "the art and science of proving that your client doesn't actually live in the city" so that he or she avoids being taxed as a New York City resident.

Read "Around NYC's Income Tax in 183 Days" (WSJ subscription required).

Attorneys

Timothy Noonan

Practices & Industries

State & Local Tax

Tax Residency

