John Godwin was recently featured in a Buffalo News article titled, “Non-compete agreements face ban, but legal fight kicks off.”

The article focuses on the FTC’s recent ban on non-competes, as well as a new federal rule pertaining to overtime pay for salaried workers which takes effect July 1. Under that new rule, the minimum salary under which workers may earn overtime will increase.

John gave insight into the impact the rule will have in New York State and why employers across the country need to take quick action.
