

Peter Gillespie Presents on Employee Privacy in the Hybrid Work Era at PLI's Institute on Privacy and Cybersecurity Law

06.16.2023

With the proliferation of alternative work arrangements following the COVID-19 pandemic, employers need to consider balancing employee monitoring and firm security with individual privacy. Laner Muchin attorney Peter Gillespie shared valuable insights on the topic at PLI's 24th Annual Institute on Privacy and Cybersecurity Law.

In his panel presentation titled "Employee Privacy in the Era of Hybrid Work," Peter discussed considerations employers should make when monitoring and managing employees working on-site, at home or elsewhere.

Topics included:

- Employee monitoring programs to address differing standards based on jurisdiction and the nature of the workplace
- Evolving privacy standards for hybrid and remote workers
- Policy considerations for compliant use of video, audio and online communication and collaboration tools
- Data security safeguards for working outside the office
