

Moss & Barnett in Our Community I Responsible Disposal, Positive Impact: Our Partnership with PCs for People

Moss & Barnett Advocate (Spring/Summer 2023 edition)
08.15.2023

Moss & Barnett continually seeks to contribute to our community in meaningful ways. This year, we found a unique opportunity to give back while also maintaining our commitment to responsible asset management. We are in the process of upgrading our technology infrastructure, and rather than simply disposing of old servers, networking equipment, and other computer peripherals, we have chosen to donate these items to PCs for People, an organization that can put our old tech to excellent use.

PCs for People is a non-profit whose mission is to provide affordable technology access to individuals and non-profit organizations in need. They refurbish and recycle donated tech gear, providing a valuable second life to items that might otherwise end up as e-waste. By donating our old technology, we not only help reduce waste but also empower those in need with access to technology.

We are thrilled to engage in this initiative that aligns so closely with our core values and are thankful for the continued support of our clients which allows us to contribute to such impactful efforts. Our old tech gear may no longer serve our firm, but it is sure to serve our community in its new life.

Some of the equipment donated to PCs for People pictured with Office Services Specialist Erik M. Tonder.

Attorneys

Jeremy M. Budd

Lori A. O'Donnell

