Overview

Chris is often sought out by those seeking outside-the-box counsel. His clients appreciate his efforts in obtaining quick resolutions. Born and raised in the Cleveland area, he has spent the past decade developing a national healthcare, employment, and business litigation practice. While he represents clients nationally, Chris maintains the firm's Cleveland presence.

While Chris's clients appreciate his efforts to help them avoid costly lawsuits, he is no stranger to contentious litigation. When much is on the line, Chris's calm demeanor is a benefit to his clients as he guides them through complex litigation matters, as well as administrative processes. He assists many multi-district litigation clients with complex litigation across the country. He represents numerous large health systems and physician groups in litigation related to provider privileges and medical staff employment events. Chris enjoys speaking to physician groups and hospitals regarding corporate governance and employment risk mitigation. He also represents physicians and providers before the Ohio Medical Board and other Ohio Administrative Agencies. Chris is often retained by businesses and health care practices to serve as outside general counsel.

In addition to his legal practice, Chris is active in civic organizations throughout the community, including serving as a Pathway to Independence (PTI) board member. Chris has also been a Cleveland Judicial Forum Invitee, and an OSBA Corporate Counsel Participant.

When not litigating, Chris enjoys spending time with his wife and three young children. He is active in their extracurricular activities, including coaching his kids in numerous athletic endeavors.
