

Trucking Accident Cases and Insurance Coverage Complexities: Guidance for Personal Injury Counsel

Stafford; Webinar
July 12, 2017

When pursuing or defending trucking injury claims, personal injury counsel must become familiar with a number of unique insurance coverage issues.

During the Stafford Webinar, Lew Bricker and Christine Anto examine the unique insurance coverage issues in trucking accident cases, including federally mandated minimum insurance requirements and endorsements for trucking companies, how to determine applicable insurance coverage, the impact of a truck driver's classification as an employee or an independent contractor on liability and coverage, and the impact of owner-operator written lease agreements on coverage.

Presenters provide their insights on unique insurance coverage issues in trucking accident cases and what personal injury counsel need to know to maximize insurance coverage for victims or to defend insurance coverage claims.
