

Handled Arbitration Involving Grievances Filed By Union Alleging Varying Insurance Premiums

Amundsen Davis's labor team handled an arbitration that arose from grievances filed by both the International Union of Operating Engineers and the Illinois Council of Police alleging that bargaining union members were paying higher premiums than non-union employees. Our client argued that the unions were made aware of the increase in insurance premiums prior to the unions executing their current collective bargaining agreements with the village. Grievance was withdrawn as a result of the parties entering into a private settlement agreement.
