

Represented a Jewelry Company, its Parent Corporation, and Two of its Individual Shareholders Accused of Consumer Fraud

Amundsen Davis represented a jewelry company, its parent corporation, and two of its individual shareholders accused of consumer fraud for selling jewelry with a lifetime guarantee that it did not intend to honor. The judge granted Amundsen Davis's motion to dismiss the parent corporation and shareholders on the basis that they were not liable for the alleged acts of the subsidiary.

PROFESSIONALS

Ronald Balfour
Partner

Eric L. Samore
Partner

RELATED SERVICES

Business Litigation

Class Action