

Successfully Defended a Nationwide Food Distributor From a Serious OSHA Citation

Amundsen Davis successfully defended a nationwide food distributor client from a serious OSHA citation issued after an employee was struck by a forklift. OSHA conducted an inspection of the facility, and issued a citation alleging that our client failed to properly mark a passageway in the facility. Our client contested the citation, since OSHA's expected abatement would have impacted our client's operation of the facility. Following the hearing on the citation, the OSHA Administrative Law Judge found in favor of our client on every fact, issue, and argument, and vacated the citation in its entirety.
