

Gary Zhao Participates in Video Episode on the Legal Profession's Battle Against Discrimination

Media Mention

The Illinois Supreme Court Commission on Professionalism

May 20, 2021

On an episode of Reimagining Law, "How Lawyers Can Combat Discriminatory Behavior," Gary Zhao discusses the role of the Asian American Bar Association of Greater Chicago (AABA) and its work fighting discriminatory behavior. He covers what others in the legal profession can do to help against the rise in anti-Asian behavior and how the AABA works both with its membership and other bar associations.

Gary, the former President of the AABA, and Patrick Dankwa John, president of the Decalogue Society of Lawyers, join Jayne Reardon, Executive Director of the Illinois Supreme Court Commission on Professionalism for the discussion.
