Illinois is one of the strictest states for regulating medical marijuana. Michael McGrory commented in the Professional Solutions Insurance Company article, "Medical Marijuana in Illinois: Is it Legal?" that, "Illinois' medical marijuana regulatory scheme is definitely complex, but it's by no means insurmountable. While there are legal quirks and risks that physicians should be aware of, overall, physicians who are interested in recommending medical cannabis for patients suffering from qualified conditions should be able to do so without too many hiccups in business as usual."
