Insight on Business interviewed Ngosong Fonkem along with a professor of economics with St. Norbert College about what international trade policies might look like under either a Harris administration or a Trump administration, and the potential impacts to Northeast Wisconsin manufacturers and the economy as a whole.

In the interview Ngosong gives insight on what he is hearing about various proposed international trade policies of each administration. He also goes on to discuss what he thinks Northeast Wisconsin manufacturing companies can expect and what would be the impact of restricting trade ties with China.

You can read Ngosong's full interview on Insight on Business' website.
