"The past four years of "America First" trade policy under the Trump Administration has been one of the most unpredictable periods in international trade history." Nogsong Fonkem's article, "2021 President's Trade Agenda and 2020 Annual Report: What Does That Mean to You?," dives into what US trade policy look like under a new Biden-Harris Administration in the coming years. The article focuses on tackling the COVID-19 pandemic, countering China through the tools of trade and countering China through a "value" base appeal.
