Moderator

Ambassador David Gross

Ambassador David Gross co-chairs the Telecom, Media & Technology Practice. He is widely recognized as one of the world's foremost experts on international telecommunications and Internet policies, having addressed the United Nations (UN) General Assembly and led more U.S. delegations to major international telecommunication conferences than anyone else in modern history. Noted as bringing

"innovation and vision to the rapidly changing TMT industry" by Who's Who Legal and as one of the "Top 30 Telecommunications lawyers in the world" by Euromoney, David draws on more than 30 years of experience as a lawyer, global policymaker, and corporate executive to assist U.S. companies seeking to enter or expand international businesses. He also advises non-U.S. companies, and industry organizations seeking to invest in, monitor, and understand the U.S. and international markets, as well as national governments. David advises companies and others on international and domestic telecoms, Internet, and high-tech strategy focusing on both specific markets and international organizations such as the International Telecommunication Union (ITU), the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), and the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC), as well as many regional organizations.

Panelists:

Christopher Burnham

Mr. Burnham is the Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Cambridge Global Capital, LLC. He co-founded Cambridge after a distinguished career in government, diplomacy, banking, and private equity. He has served as Under Secretary General for Management of the United Nations, Under Secretary of State for Management (acting), Assistant Secretary of State for Resource Management and Chief Financial Officer of the U.S. Department of State, Treasurer of the State of Connecticut, three-term Member of the Connecticut House of Representatives, vice chairman of Deutsche Bank Asset Management and global co-head of private equity, and CEO of PIMCO's largest equity arm, Columbus Circle Investors. He has also, most recently, served as a member of Donald Trump's Presidential Transition Team at Department of State.

Mr. Burnham led reforms of the Connecticut Treasury, modernization of the financial and reporting systems of the U.S. State Department, and instituted sweeping governance reforms as chief management officer of the United Nations. This included the establishment of the first UN Ethics Office, the first United Nations Independent Audit Advisory Committee, the adoption of new International Public Sector Accounting Standards, the first comprehensive consolidated annual report in the history of the United Nations, and a new whistleblower protection policy that received independent recognition as the "gold standard." He also implemented best-in-class financial disclosure reporting by senior United Nations officials and staff, based on the U.S. Government model.

Mr. Burnham joined the United Nations after serving as acting Under Secretary of State for Management for Secretary Condoleezza Rice, and as Assistant Secretary of State for resource management and Chief Financial Officer of the State Department for General Colin Powell. Mr. Burnham joined the Department of State in September 2001, and has been confirmed twice by the United States Senate.

From 2006 to December 2012, Mr. Burnham was the Vice Chairman and Managing Director of Deutsche Asset Management, and a member of the Global Operating Committee. In 2008, Mr. Burnham co-founded and led Deutsche Bank's direct private equity group, RREEF Capital Partners, the bank's reentry into private equity after an eight-year absence. He also chaired Deutsche Bank's governance committee in Germany, and is a globally recognized expert in the implementation of accountability, transparency, and best practice in government, corporations, and inter-governmental organizations.

A veteran of the United States Marine Corps Reserve who retired at the rank of Lieutenant Colonel, Mr. Burnham volunteered for active duty in 1990 and served as an infantry platoon commander in the Gulf War. He and his men were part of the lead Allied forces to reach and liberate Kuwait City.

He is currently co-founder, chairman and chief executive officer of Cambridge Global Capital, a venture capital investment firm focused on opportunities in life sciences, cyber and data security, and data analytics.

Mr. Burnham studied national security policy at Georgetown's National Security Studies Program, and is a graduate of Washington and Lee University and Harvard University, where he earned a master's degree in Public Administration.

Ambassador Douglas Lute

Ambassador Douglas Lute is the former United States Permanent Representative to the North Atlantic Council, NATO's standing political body. Appointed by President Obama, he assumed the Brussels-based post in 2013 and served until 2017. During this period, he was instrumental in designing and implementing the 28-nation Alliance's responses to the most severe security challenges in Europe since the end of the Cold War.

A career Army officer, in 2010 Lute retired from active duty as a lieutenant general after 35 years of service. In 2007 President Bush named him as Assistant to the President and Deputy National Security Advisor to coordinate the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan. In 2009 he was the senior White House official retained by President Obama and his focus on the National Security Council staff shifted to South Asia. Across these two Administrations, he served a total of six years in the White House.

Before being assigned to the White House, General Lute served as Director of Operations (J3) on the Joint Staff, overseeing U.S. military operations worldwide. From 2004 to 2006, he was Director of Operations for the United States Central Command, with responsibility for U.S. military operations in 25 countries across the Middle East, eastern Africa and Central Asia, in which over 200,000 U.S. troops operated.

Through his military-diplomatic career, he received numerous honors and awards, including three awards of the Defense Distinguished Service Medal, the State Department's Distinguished Honor Award, the Grand Officer of the Order of Merit for the Italian Republic, and the Commander's Cross of the Order of Merit for the Federal Republic of Germany.

General Lute holds degrees from the United States Military Academy at West Point and from the Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University. He is a Senior Fellow at the Belfer Center at Harvard University; a member of the Council on Foreign Relations; and a charter member of the Flag Officer Advisory Group of the United States Institute of Peace.

Nate Tibbits

He is senior vice president of government affairs for Qualcomm Incorporated, a world leader in wireless technology. Leading Qualcomm's Washington, DC, office, Tibbits focuses on driving Qualcomm's Washington public affairs and policy agenda, including trade, immigration reform, and intellectual property protection.

From 2009 to 2011, Tibbits was executive secretary of the National Security Council, supporting President Barack Obama and his national security team in formulating national security policy. As special assistant to President Obama for presidential personnel, he worked on candidate identification and selection for more than 1,000 presidential appointments in 2009.

Immediately prior to joining Qualcomm, Tibbits ran Blackwood Advisory, a boutique strategy firm, and was the chair for the U.S. public affairs practice at Burson-Marsteller, where he worked with energy, technology, finance, and defense clients. Earlier in his career, he was the founding chief operating officer for the Center for a New American Security, a national security think tank. He was also vice president for international education at Discovery Communications, where he managed a digital content business unit with distribution in 60 countries. Before joining Discovery, Tibbits worked at the Albright Group, a consulting firm advising Fortune-100 clients on a range of international policy and public affairs matters. He was previously at the National Democratic Institute for International Affairs where he managed international election observations and established new offices in Africa, Latin America, and the Middle East.

A graduate of the University of North Carolina (UNC) in Chapel Hill, Tibbits also holds an M.B.A. from the University of Maryland in College Park. He currently serves on UNC's Global Advisory Board, as well as on the UNC Burch Fellows DC Advisory Board.

Ruth E. Berry

Ruth E. Berry is the Deputy Director for Bilateral Affairs in the Office of the International Communications and Information Policy at the U.S. Department of State. Prior to working in this role, she works as the Senior Syria Assistance Coordinator in the Bureaus of Near Eastern Affairs. Along with working for the U.S. Department of State, Ms. Berry has experience with U.S. Agency for International Development in the Office of U.S. Foreign Assistance Resources and with the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs as a Management Analyst. Ms. Berry has a depth of knowledge in the public sector that has contributed to the conversation surrounding technology and information policy both in the United States and abroad. Ms. Berry studied her Master's at The University of Chicago in Near and Middle Eastern studies and received her Bachelor's degree for Lewis and Clark College in International Relations and Affairs.
