

Jim Goehrig

Chief Information Officer

202.719.7050

jgoehrig@wiley.law

Jim Goehrig is the Chief Information Officer at Wiley. In his role, Jim delivers information technology leadership, ensuring comprehensive enterprise technology strategies and operations. Jim has more than twenty years of experience providing innovative legal technology delivery and management for law firms and has led successful technology transformation initiatives throughout his career. At Wiley, he is responsible for planning, developing, and delivering technology infrastructure, systems and services, process improvements, knowledge management, information and research services, project management, security and privacy, and information governance.

Jim earned certifications in numerous technical disciplines throughout his career and has been recognized with award-winning technology implementations and nominations for technology leadership excellence. He is a member of ILTA and a presenter and contributor at various technology leadership forums.

Credentials

Education

B.A., Susquehanna University