Wiley Rein Hosts Federal Communications Bar Discussion on Net Neutrality and the Path Ahead

March 29, 2015

Wiley Rein LLP is hosting a net neutrality discussion on Monday, March 30, from 6:00pm to 8:15pm, featuring a variety of distinguished speakers in back-to-back panels, one that will be moderated by partner and former FCC commissioner Robert M. McDowell, and the other by partner Brett A. Shumate. The CLE seminar, entitled “Understanding Net Neutrality and the Path Ahead,” will be presented jointly by the Judicial Practice, Wireline, and Wireless Committees of the Federal Communications Bar Association (FCBA). The event is open to members of the FCBA, and registration is required. Wiley Rein partner Joshua S. Turner took a lead role in organizing the program.

The discussion will focus on the debate over net neutrality, which has turned “Title II” into 2014’s most unlikely household word—and examine what may lie ahead in 2015. Now that the FCC has released its order reclassifying broadband, there is a clearer picture of how the agency intends to regulate this key sector of the economy going forward. Mr. Shumate’s panel will concentrate on the nuts and bolts of the new regulations. Mr. McDowell’s panel will cover the reactions of various stakeholders in the process and discuss whether the FCC’s order has gone too far, not far enough, or has managed to hit the mark.
