Chinese Exporters of Mobile Access Equipment Subject to Customs Enforcement Actions for Evading Trade Laws

August 17, 2023

Washington, DC – U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP) announced that it has investigated allegations against several Chinese mobile access equipment exporters for violating the customs and trade laws of the United States. Wiley represented JLG Industries, Inc. (JLG) – a leading U.S. manufacturer of mobile access equipment, such as boom lifts, scissor lifts, and telehandlers – in submitting information to CBP alleging that several Chinese exporters were evading antidumping and countervailing duties in place on mobile access equipment imports from China. This included evidence that Chinese companies were falsely marking shipments in order to avoid paying duties. CBP has notified the parties that it took enforcement actions as a result of its investigations.

"We commend CBP for investigating companies that are evading duties and for taking strong action to enforce the trade laws," said Tim Brightbill, co-chair of Wiley's International Trade Practice, who represents JLG along with Wiley partner Laura El-Sabaawi. "Once antidumping and subsidy orders are in place, robust enforcement is critical to ensure that American companies receive the relief they are entitled to under the law. These enforcement actions show both the lengths that Chinese mobile access equipment manufacturers will go to evade trade orders and also the seriousness with which CBP takes such actions."

Antidumping and countervailing duty orders have been in place on Chinese of imports of mobile access equipment since December 2021 and April 2022, respectively. Combined duty rates range between 43% and 184% for most Chinese producers and exporters. Duty
