Washington, DC – Wiley, a preeminent DC law firm, has been named among the “Best Law Firms for Women” by Seramount for the fifth consecutive year. Wiley was among 50 law firms recognized nationally this year. The 2022 list recognizes law firms that utilize best practices in recruiting, retaining, promoting, and developing women lawyers.

Law firms selected for the list averaged 38% women among members of their Management Committees, up from 35% in 2021, according to Seramount. The percentage of multicultural women at firms on the list increased to 29% this year from 27% in 2021. In addition, 38% of those deciding promotions to equity partner were women, up from 34% last year, and 36% of those determining compensation were women, up from 34% last year.
