

ARTICLE

D.C. Circuit Challenge to FCC's Authority Over Fax Advertisements Has Important First Amendment Implications

Bloomberg BNA's Telecommunications Law Resource Center
December 12, 2014

A battle is brewing in the D.C. Circuit over the Federal Communications Commission's authority to regulate fax advertisements under the relevant statute and the First Amendment. For many years, the FCC has regulated unsolicited fax advertisements as clearly permitted under the Telephone Consumer Protection Act (TCPA). 47 U.S.C. § 227(b)(1)(C). The TCPA defines an unsolicited fax advertisement as one sent to any person without that person's prior express invitation or permission. In 2006, the FCC expanded its reach to solicited fax advertisements sent with the recipient's prior express consent or permission. Now, the FCC's authority to regulate solicited fax advertisements is being challenged in the D.C. Circuit. Click here to read the full article.

(Reproduced with permission from Telecommunications Law Resource Center, 2014 TERCN 1, 12/12/15. Copyright © 2015 by The Bureau of National Affairs, Inc. (800-372-1033) <http://www.bna.com>)

Authors

Megan L. Brown
Partner
202.719.7579
mbrown@wiley.law

Practice Areas

First Amendment/Commercial Speech
Issues and Appeals
Judicial Review of Agency Action
Litigation
Telecom, Media & Technology
TMT Appellate